Nicholas Francis Shoults
March 13, 1955 - December 10, 2017*

I've walked the beach listening to the sound of the surf the waves intimidating by their size and the force of the water as the top breaks off and crashes to the ground. I look upon the Sands searching for what treasure the ocean has decided to give up only to realize it is teasing me. To give me a brief glimpse only to take it away before I can reach it. My foot steps are erased almost as fast as they are placed removing all signs of my presence. As I tread upon the Sands of time only the memories remain. The memories of holding your hand, feeling your caress against my chest. Watching your smile as our son enters the wave knowing the other one is but a thought away. A new day and a new journey but it's the memories that remain strong and can give you the strength to face the unknown. You are in my heart and in my soul and but a memory away.
